Lockout/Tagout

What? Why? How?

What is LOTO?

“Lockout/Tagout” refers to specific practices and procedures to safeguard employees from the unexpected energization or startup of machinery and equipment, or the release of hazardous energy during service or maintenance activities.

This requires, in part, that a designated individual turns off and disconnects the machinery or equipment from its energy source(s) before performing service or maintenance and that the authorized employee(s) either lock or tag the energy-isolating device(s) to prevent the release of hazardous energy and take steps to verify that the energy has been isolated effectively.

Why do I need to be concerned about LOTO?

Employees can be seriously or fatally injured if machinery they service or maintain unexpectedly energizes, starts up, or releases stored energy.

OSHA’s standard on the Control of Hazardous Energy (Lockout/Tagout), found in Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) Part 1910.147, spells out the steps employers must take to prevent accidents associated with hazardous energy.

Practicing LOTO not only provides workers with protection from industrial machinery, but also protects your company from extensive OSHA fines that be detrimental to company reputation and finances.

How does LOTO work?

Lockout devices hold energy-isolation devices in a safe or “off” position. They provide protection by preventing machines or equipment from becoming energized because they are positive restraints that no one can remove without a key or other unlocking mechanism.

Tagout devices, by contrast, are prominent warning devices that an authorized employee fastens to energy-isolating devices to warn employees not to reenergize the machine while he or she services or maintains it.

Tagout devices are easier to remove and, by themselves, provide employees with less protection than do lockout devices.

Lockout tags save lives. Be Compliant!

29 CFR 1910.147(c)(5)(ii)(D)

Identify the employee applying the device(s). Each standard NMC lockout tag provides blank space to identify the employee who applied the tag. For further identification and instant recognition of the employee working on the equipment, add a photo to each lockout tag. Details on page 6.

29 CFR 1910.147(c)(5)(ii)(A)(2)

Be constructed and printed so that exposure to weather conditions or wet and damp locations will not cause the tag to deteriorate or the message on the tag to become illegible.

Our Unrippable Vinyl and Polytag™ tag materials are intended for industrial applications because of their pliability and strength. We also offer laminated and self-laminated options for added durability. For more details on our lamination options, turn to page 8.

29 CFR 1910.147(c)(5)(iii)

Warn against hazardous conditions if the machine or equipment is energized and shall include a legend such as the following: Do Not Start. Do Not Open. Do Not Close. Do Not Energize. Do Not Operate.

The legend of every standard NMC lockout tag warns against the dangers of accidental machine start up or release of energy. If a different legend is needed, our Customer Solution Specialists are here to help and ensure compliance regulations are met. Any questions, email quotes@nationalmarker.com.

29 CFR 1910.147(d)(4)(iii)

Where tagout devices are used with energy isolating devices designed with the capability of being locked, the tag attachment shall be fastened at the same point at which the lock would have been attached.

The durability of our tags is unmatched by competitors. Though a grommet is included in most lockout tags for added reinforcement, tags withstand strength requirements even without it. For a video tutorial on how to apply visual tagouts to equipment, visit www.nationalmarker.com/lockout.

29 CFR 1910.147(b)

Tagout device: A prominent warning device, such as a tag and a means of attachment, which can be securely fastened to an energy isolating device in accordance with an established procedure, to indicate that the energy isolating device and the equipment being controlled may not be operated until the tagout device is removed.

NEW! ENERGY ISOLATION

Energy Isolation tags and labels help employees identify every point that needs to be locked out in a lockout procedure. Utilize them as a marker to clearly mark the points that require a lockout device to shut them down. Identify all different types of hazardous energy sources such kinetic, chemical, or mechanical that may be part of a machine or utility system.

EQUIPMENT CHECKLIST

If your employees service or maintain machines where the unexpected startup, energization, or the release of stored energy could cause injury, the Lockout/Tagout standard applies including, but not limited to: mechanical, electrical, hydraulic, pneumatic, chemical, and thermal energy. Record your facility's equipment list below. Next to each type of equipment, list the number of pieces of equipment in your facility and indicate the energy source requiring lockout. The list will help quantify the number of procedures and the nature of the lockout devices needed to accomplishment disablement.

Audit Checklist

Use this checklist to ensure compliance with Lockout/Tagout standard (CFR) 1910.147; any unchecked activities indicate a gap in compliance, and can result in serious fines or injury to your workers.

Equipment Checklist

Each piece of machinery may require a unique lockout device to ensure control of hazardous energy. Mark every different lockout device you need to ensure control of all hazardous energies in your facility.

Sample Written Process

Not sure how to begin your Lockout program? Establishing a written procedure is the first step. Use this sample written program as a template to get started.
